Grand visions of a new Penn Station

No MSG. Four of the city's top architecture firms unveiled designs for a new Penn Station—and a separate Madison Square Garden.

The renderings, revealed yesterday, are part of a design challenge put out by the Municipal Arts Society, which has joined with the Regional Plan Association to form the Alliance for a New Penn Station.

The firms, SHoP Architects; H3 Hardy Architecture; SOM; and Diller, Scofidio + Renfro, handpicked by MAS, had two months to come up with their designs, according to Vin Cipolla, MAS president.

The plans are ambitious in their design, but also in their very existence — while the operating permit for Madison Square Garden has expired, they are now applying for a permit that would allow them to remain above the train station permanently.

"We cannot go on with Penn Station in its existing condition," Cipolla said. "It's environmentally unsafe, way over capacity and cannot meet the needs of a growing population."

The next step will be a public hearing with the City Council in June, where the Alliance hopes to persuade the Council to vote for a 10-year permit for Madison Square Garden when the vote comes in July.

Threaten. Letters to Bloomberg included ricin poison: NYPD

Threatening letters to Mayor Michael Bloomberg contained ricin poison, the NYPD reported yesterday afternoon.

NYPD spokesman Paul Browne said that anonymous threats were sent to the mayor in letters opened in the city Friday, May 24, as well as by the director of the group he started, Mayors Against Illegal Guns, in Washington, D.C., Sunday.

Preliminary tests showed ricin, according to the NYPD.

In the letters, the writer mentioned the gun law debate, Browne said.

The FBI and NYPD are investigating the threats.

Missing Qns woman found in car trunk

Police believe that a woman they found strangled to death in the trunk of a car Monday was a Queens mother of three who was reported missing last week.

Young Joo Byun, 42, of Flushing, was last seen leaving her job on 55th Avenue in Maspeth at 4:30 a.m. on Friday, police said.

Cops discovered the woman's body in the trunk of her blue Honda Civic parked about two miles away in Woodside.

Street dancer sought in teens' robbery

Police are searching for a street dancer who they say robbed two teens inside the Union Square subway station last week after the victims watched him perform.

The victims, both 14 years old, watched the dancer perform inside the station on Friday, cops said. After the performance, the suspect lured the teens to an abandoned spot and forced them to give him an iPhone and $30.

Local officials blast Red Cross over Sandy aid

Storm aftermath.

The organization has not spent $110 million in Sandy aid funds it collected.

Seven months after superstorm Sandy, the Red Cross has not spent more than $100 million donated after the hurricane, local officials said yesterday.

City Council Speaker Christine Quinn called the unspent money "an insult" to victims.

Quinn and other Council members sent a letter to American Red Cross CEO Josh Lockwood, demanding they allocate the cash.

They said the organization has not spent $110 million, of nearly three times that much collected.

"We are deeply disturbed by reports that the Red Cross has not spent $110 million of $303 million in Sandy relief funds," the local officials wrote in the letter.

They continue, "Sitting on this unspent money is an insult to both the victims of Hurricane Sandy and the generous donors to the American Red Cross."

They suggest the funds be spent on generators and local nonprofits.

Pilots. Amazon moving ahead with five original TV series

Amazon.com Inc. said yesterday that it will make five original TV series, having used viewer feedback to pick the shows out of a group of 14 pilots filmed by the world's largest Internet retailer earlier this year.

These are the first TV series ever made by Amazon and represent a major foray for the company into original programming delivered over the Internet, stepping up competition with Netflix Inc. and Hulu.

The new series will be shown exclusively on Amazon's Prime Instant Video service later this year and in early 2014, the company said. Prime Instant Video is free for members of Amazon's Prime service, which offers two-day shipping and other benefits in the United States for $79 a year.

Amazon posted all 14 TV pilots online for anyone to watch in April and encouraged viewers to give feedback. The company analyzed the reviews and other data, such as how long people watched, to try to pick shows that are more likely to do well as full

Made the cut

The chosen pilots are:

- "Alpha House," a political comedy starring John Goodman
- "Betas," a comedy about start-up culture in Silicon Valley
- "Annebots," a kids' show about robots
- "Creative Galaxy," an animated art adventure series
- "Tumbleleaf," another kids' show about a small blue fox named Fig.

"We're thrilled to have emerged safely from this harrowing exercise in online democracy," said Garry Trudeau, the Pulitzer-Prize winning cartoonist who created and wrote "Alpha House."

Amazon will shoot 12 more episodes of "Alpha House" to complete the first season, which will air starting in November, Trudeau added. REUTERS

- Pilots that were not picked up as full series included "Zombieland," a comedy based on the successful movie of the same name, and "Browsers," a musical comedy starring Bebe Neuwirth.
- The other pilots that did not make it were: "Dark Minions," "Onion News Network," "Supanatural," "Those Who Can't," "Positively Ozitively," "Sara Solves It" and "Teeny Tiny Dogs."

FB vows to improve its response to hate speech

Backlash. The social media site says its systems aren't adequately removing offensive, hateful content.

Facebook Inc., admitted that its systems to remove hate speech haven't worked as well as the company had hoped, amid reports that advertisers were pulling their brands off the social network in the face of a backlash from women's groups.

In a blog post by its safety team late Tuesday, the company acknowledged there had been problems with removing content that would be considered examples of gender-based hate.

The British edition of MediaWeek reported yesterday that at least 13 brands pulled ads from Facebook in the wake of the campaign. The New York Times cited Japanese automaker Nissan as saying it had pulled all advertising off the site until it got assurances that its ads would not appear alongside offensive content.

Yesterday, Nissan spokesman David Reuter clarified that the company had asked Facebook to remove its ads from offensive pages that were visited by targeted users, and only from the British version of the social network. He said the automaker was not changing its advertising strategy with Facebook, with which it maintained a good relationship.

In its blog post, Facebook said it would update the guidelines used to evaluate hate speech, and would encourage existing anti-hate groups to add representatives of women's organizations as well.

Last week, Women, Action & the Media released an open letter to Facebook, urging the company to improve its response to content that "trivializes or glorifies violence against girls or women." REUTERS

Tsarnaev mentally 'normal,' mother says after phone call

Talk. His mother says their conversation lasted for about six minutes, adding that she was promised one call per month.

Boston Marathon bombing suspect Dzhokhar Tsarnaev is recuperating and sounds "normal," his mother said following the first phone conversation with her son since his arrest.

"I couldn't stop myself from crying," Zubeidat Tsarnaeva said in a phone interview late yesterday from Makhachkala, the capital of Russia's Dagestan region. "He said: 'I am absolutely fine, my wounds are healing. Everything is in God's hands. Be patient. Everything will be fine.'"

Tsarnaev, 19, is accused of carrying out the April 15 attack, which killed three people and injured at least 260, with his brother Tamerlan, who died after a shoot-out with police. He was arrested April 19 and is being held at an all-male federal prison hospital in Ayer, Mass., recovering from a gunshot wound to the neck. Tsarnaev faces a possible death sentence if convicted.

Mothers are the breadwinners for more families

Census Bureau.

The study said a record 40 percent of all U.S. households with children relied on mothers as their main or only source of income.

Mothers are the primary or sole source of income for a growing number of U.S. families, in a dramatic shift in American homes and the workplace since the 1960s, the Pew Research Center said in a study released yesterday.

Based on data from the U.S. Census Bureau, the study said that a record 40 percent of all U.S.

households with children relied on mothers as their main or only source of income. That marked a sharp increase from 11 percent of families in 1960.

The so-called "breadwinner moms" are split into two camps. Married mothers who have a higher income than their spouses account for 37 percent, and 63 percent consist of single mothers, the Pew study said.

It said that married women who out-earn their spouses tended to be slightly older, disproportionately white, college-educated and better-paid than single mothers, who were younger, more likely to be black or Hispanic and less likely to have a college degree.

Single mothers now make up one-quarter of all U.S. households with children, and women make up almost half of the U.S. labor force.

In a public opinion survey examining the impact of mothers working for pay, Pew Research found last month that about two-thirds of Americans recognized clear economic benefits for families in the gains moms have made in the workplace. REUTERS

Gay couple married in France's first same-sex wedding

Divided. France is the 14th country to legalize same-sex marriage, an issue that has also divided opinion in many nations.

Two men married each other in the southern French city of Montpellier yesterday, in the first same-sex wedding in a country rocked by protests for and against the reform.

Vincent Autin and Bruno Boileau exchanged vows in the futuristic city hall before the mayor, relatives, friends and media as police stood guard outside to ensure the ceremony was not disrupted.

"It's a great pleasure for me to declare you married by law," said Montpellier's left-wing Mayor Helene Mandroux, as the couple embraced to a huge cheer from an audience of about 500.

On Sunday, hundreds of thousands of opponents of gay marriage

Investors in an Empire state of mind

Investors of the company that owns the Empire State Building have approved a plan to take the iconic tower public. The plan clears the last major hurdle to real estate mogul Peter Malkin's attempt to retain control over a property that has been in his family for more than five decades, while allowing investors to cash out. Malkin Holdings first filed its intention in November 2011 to fold the 102-story New York office tower into a newly created real estate investment trust known as the Empire State Realty Trust Inc. But it faced stiff opposition from a small group of investors who objected, in part, to how their stake was valued, and sued. In a U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission filing yesterday, Malkin said investors representing at least 80 percent of the ownership units voted in favor of the plan, and the ballot was still open. / GETTY IMAGES

Capital offense.

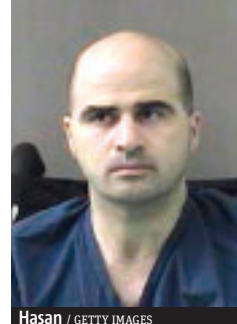

The suspect could face the death penalty if he is found guilty of the shooting rampage.

Accused Fort Hood gunman Major Nidal Hasan asked a U.S. military court yesterday to rule that he can represent himself at his trial this summer. It could bring the death penalty on charges he killed 13 people in a 2009 shooting rampage.

Jury selection in Hasan's military trial at Fort Hood was delayed until next week after he asked the judge, Colonel Tara Osborn, to let him fire his lawyers and represent himself. The trial is scheduled to start July 1.

Hasan is accused of opening fire on a group of soldiers who were preparing to deploy to Iraq in November 2009 in the worst shooting rampage on a U.S. military post. In addition to the 13 people who died, 32 others were wounded.

ending the rampage and leaving the Army psychiatrist paralyzed from the chest down. He faces a possible death sentence if convicted of premeditated murder.

Osborn has little choice but to grant

Hasan's request to represent himself under U.S. law, which could pose problems for prosecutors and create more avenues for appeal, the military law experts said. She is likely to appoint lawyers to assist Hasan.

Military law experts said the move could make Hasan's court martial more challenging for prosecutors and painful for witnesses who may be questioned by the man accused of wounding them, or killing their family members.

"It is hard enough for the victim of an attempted murder or the family member of someone who has been murdered, to come into a courtroom and sit across the room from a man they are convinced did this," said Geoffrey Corn, a retired lieutenant colonel and veteran Army prosecutor.

Osborn has sought to get the trial on track after delays caused by a debate over whether Hasan, who is a Muslim, should be required to shave his beard to comply with military rules. Osborn set the issue aside, and Hasan has continued to appear in court with a full beard. REUTERS

Leak probe. House GOP assails Holder over journalist flap

Two Republican lawmakers asked U.S. Attorney General Eric Holder yesterday to clarify on testimony he gave Congress this month about his role in the targeting of journalists in a leak probe.

House Judiciary Committee Chairman Bob Goodlatte of Virginia and colleague Jim Sensenbrenner of Wisconsin sent a letter to Holder saying that recent media reports "appear to be at odds with your sworn testimony."

At the May 15 hearing, Holder said he had never been involved in any decision to pursue a criminal investigation of a journalist, and said it would not be "wise policy" to do so.

Last week, news outlets reported that Holder had approved a decision to seek a search warrant for Fox News email records as part of a leak investigation. Reuters later reported that Holder signed off on

Letter of the law

- The letter from House Republicans focused not on the wider review, but on the searches of Rosen's materials. It asked Holder for a "full and accurate account of [his] involvement in and approval of these search warrants."

a subpoena for telephone records as well.

The Fox News reporter involved, James Rosen, was described as a "co-conspirator" by investigators, but was not charged.

In defense of Holder, White House spokesman Jay Carney said that Holder had testified truthfully.

Carney said there was an "extremely large distinction" between describing a reporter as a co-conspirator and charging him with a crime. REUTERS

Bachmann won't seek re-election

Michele Bachmann, the firebrand conservative 2012 presidential contender, said yesterday that she will not seek re-election to the U.S. House of Representatives when her term ends. She did not rule out another run for the White House. Bachmann, a Minnesota Republican, said that four two-year terms was enough time for anyone to serve in the House. She gave no specific reason for not seeking a fifth term. REUTERS / GETTY IMAGES

Mortar mishap

Probe: Human error led to death of Marines

The failure of Marines to follow correct procedures during a live-fire exercise in March led to the mortar blast that killed seven Marines and wounded eight service members, according to findings of an investigation partly made public yesterday.

The explosion at Hawthorne Army Depot in western Nevada was one of the deadliest military training accidents on U.S. soil in recent years.

The Marines were killed when a 60 mm mortar round detonated "in the immediate vicinity of the mortar section's firing position," according to a Marine Corps statement. A spokesman declined to elaborate. REUTERS

Jennifer Lopez's skimpy outfit draws complaints in Britain

Speaking of lady-bits, Jennifer Lopez's were on full display on "Britain's Got Talent" Tuesday night when she performed her new single. The singer appeared in a sort of leather thong leotard that left most of her ample assets in full view — especially when she knelt down toward the camera, crotch-first. According to the Daily Mail, the English public aren't happy with the display — Ofcom, the English FCC, says it's received complaints about the full-frontal display.

THIS WASN'T THE OUTFIT.

James Lipton was a pimp?

Wait. This is crazy. So, so crazy: Apparently, long before he hosted "Inside the Actors Studio," James Lipton, 86, enjoyed a brief but profitable stint as a pimp in Paris.

"It was only a few years after [World War II]. Paris was different then, still poor," he admits to Parade magazine, explaining that running a bordello gave him enough to live on for a year. "I did a roaring business. That's how I lived. I was going through my rites of passage, no question about it. It was a great year of my life."

Lipton's feelings about the practice of prostitution have clearly changed, though, saying that you shouldn't have to pay for sex: "I think if you can't earn it on your own, then you don't deserve it."

I mean, I don't know. I hate this. Being a pimp and helping arrange women to whore themselves out isn't something to be proud of. It's a tragedy and terrible. On the other hand, James Lipton was a pimp. In Paris! My feminist and comedy sides are currently at war with one another. What to think?!

Kelly Osbourne doesn't want a 'big vagina'

Kelly Osbourne wants the career and the baby. Well, so far, it's a "maybe" on the baby — as long as it doesn't stretch out her lady-bits.

"I need a Golden Globe. What is life if you're not going to live it to the fullest?" she says in an interview with Cosmopolitan magazine. The outspoken "Fashion Police" star has big plans for the future at home as well — though some aspects of starting a family give her pause: "I do want babies, but I don't want a great big vagina," she says.

I feel like Osbourne has said, out loud, the words every celebrity who has ever gone the gestational carrier route has denied thinking but secretly considered.

And, honestly, Osbourne is anxious about the wrong body part after childbirth: She should worry waaaaayyy more about her boobs than anything thing else.

Daniel Radcliffe: 'No more schoolboy stuff'

Daniel Radcliffe isn't opposed to more entries in the Harry Potter franchise, but don't expect him to suit up as the title character anymore — even if J.K. Rowling were to write it. "No more schoolboy stuff," he tells Time Out. "A cameo as Harry's dad? That would be perfect."

The dominant power couple in the world shifts at the whim of a fickle populace. Right now, for some, the greatest — or just most wonderful — duo is Nick Offerman and Megan Mullally. Married since 2003, the two have seen a shift in their careers: Once Mullally was the one with the hit show ("Will and Grace"). Now it's him, as burly libertarian carnivore Ron Swanson on "Parks and Recreation" — although Mullally has guest appearances as his ex-wife, Tammy. In fact, they tend to work together on the same projects; that way, they don't have to spend any time apart. In "The Kings of Summer," Offerman plays the widowed father of a teenager who runs away from home to live in the woods with his bros. Mullally plays the mother of one of his friends, which affords them only a few scenes together.

You've both been doing a lot of smaller films, often together. What's the appeal of these projects?
MULLALLY: I think we both love doing indie movies.

NICK OFFERMAN AND MEGAN MULLALLY

Hollywood's most awesome power couple talk about making small movies, together.

RON AND TAMMY 4-EVA

It's kind of the equivalent of the 99-seat play. You have the feeling that you have more creative leeway and you can make it be the way you want it to be. When everyone is on a level playing field and nobody is getting paid, I think everyone pitches in equally and has the same kind of desire to create something good.

OFFERMAN: We choose material, first and foremost, based on scripts that we think are very good. Scripts that don't go through the corporate regime are going to end up better because they'll retain somebody with a beautiful artistic vision and/or a great sense of humor. That will come through in an independent script much more so than a studio project. Those

Q&A: Nick Offerman

What was appealing about this character?
At the moment I'm having a lot of really nice opportunities that have come from "Parks and Rec." Among them are not a lot of nice meaty roles with a full emotional arc. So the script that I thought was really funny but also allowed me to take a character from A to B was incredibly appealing to me.

can't help but be homogenized by the standards and practices, the Coca-Cola people.

How did you get involved in "Kings of Summer"?
OFFERMAN: They were looking for sort of a gruff guy who could also tell a joke and Russell Crowe wasn't available. Chris Colletta's script was poignant, beautiful and heartfelt, but also had a terrific sense of humor. It often happens with Megan and I: One of us gets a job on something and the producers will say, "Can we get your spouse interested in this?" If one of us loves the script, the other is happy to jump on board, too. It also affords us the opportunity instead of spending two weeks apart while out in Cleveland, we're there together and having fun working on it together. There are a lot of perks to it.

Quoted

"We joke with each other just to make each other crack up. In 'The Kings of Summer,' we don't have that much cross over. I think it is the same. I think it is kind of like how we would be just together alone."

Mullally, on how the couple interacts at home

It seems like there were lots of spaces in the script for you guys to riff.

OFFERMAN: The going technique is to go with a really great script and get a really great cast. You have to shoot your scenes as written because you need all the story points. Chris Colletta's script was wonderful and there was no need to embellish it. You happen to have some of the greatest improvisers in the nation of America. You take the script and shoot the scenes and then you say "Let's f— around," and you end up with a handful of gold nuggets that you'd be crazy not to use.

Today's comedy scenes seem to be very fraternal.
MULLALLY: It started around 2006 or 2007 when people started moving out in mass from New York, a lot of the "SNL" people. It's great because you really do have a feeling of supportiveness, competition, a feeling that when people that I've cast for my own projects are going to return that favor. You'd think in comedy it would be more competitive, but it isn't.

OFFERMAN: Also, a great many of us buy cocaine from the same dealer in Culver City.

MULLALLY: Don't ask for his name.

OFFERMAN: He told me that he would introduce me to Vince Vaughn, but he did not.

5 'Shadow Dancer' "Man on Wire" director James Marsh goes with fiction this time, dwelling on an IRA member (Andrea Riseborough) who turns snitch. Clive Owen and Gillian Anderson co-star.

6 'History of Future Folk' The trend of two

The case can certainly be made that technology is damaging our dating lives. Facebook stalking rarely leads to positive outcomes, the tone of text messages can so easily be misinterpreted and new iPhones show exactly how long it took you to type that witty response. Seriously, Apple? The good news is, some apps out there can actually help you. Here are two:

Swoon

It's the first mobile dating app available on both iPhone and Android, meaning a larger pool of potential mates. In case you're unfamiliar with the lingo, mobile dating apps are basically low-maintenance online dating platforms. Instead of having to put together a whole profile, Swoon links directly to your Facebook page and pulls photos for other users to see. Once you're connected, the app lets you browse through pictures of potential matches and presents a count of similar interests and mutual friends. Yes, it's not that much info to

Are you suffering from depression symptoms?

Depression symptoms may include:

- Persistent sadness
- Loss of interest in usual activities

Snap chat is the safer way to sext (but exercise caution).

go on — but as anyone who's struggled with putting together a dating profile can tell you, sometimes less is more.

Swoon is totally anonymous until you and another user "like" each other and then the app allows you to chat. Although Swoon pulls some information from your Facebook, don't worry, there's no sign on your page that you're using the app — just in case you're private about those sorts of things. And ladies, the maker of the app assured me they've spared no effort to attract "high-quality" men.

Have you been wanting to send some nudie pics but you're nervous about them living in someone's phone forever? With Snap chat (for both Android and iPhone), the pics you send last for 15 seconds, then get deleted. The app markets itself as "a new way to share moments with friends," but I think it's pretty clearly for your more scandalous selfies.

The slight caveat with this app is that more tech-savvy users can probably find ways around the pictures' self-destruction or even ways to recover deleted images. But if you've gotta show some skin to someone special, snap chat is definitely the safer way to sext.

Cocktail trends from MCC

The fourth annual Manhattan Cocktail Classic (May 17-21) featured 87 drinks — with these five recurring themes. The recipes are available at Metro.us

PLUS

Free paella!

Whether you're a paella pro or you've never treated your mouth to the taste of the Spanish rice dish, now is your chance to do it for free. Running through Labor Day, Barraca (81 Greenwich Ave., 212-462-0080) is offering a plate of free paella with the purchase of each glass of wine, house-infused sangria or a specialty cocktail, Mondays-Fridays from 5 p.m.-7 p.m. Talk about una hora feliz.

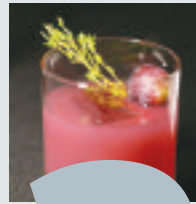

Unique garnishes

Move over, maraschino cherry. Modern drinkers want to be known on sight as someone with more elevated tastes than their peers. We saw a lot of dehydrated fruit and dried flowers, not to mention several exotic fruits. (Dancing on the Ceiling, by Adam Kanter)

Ginger beer

It not only adds an extra layer with its uniquely sweet-spicy flavor, but this extremely popular ingredient also offers a nice, bubbly texture. Consider this 2013's equivalent to prosecco via 2012. (Eye of the Wind, by Katie Loeb)

Honey

For all-natural sweetness (sometimes with a bit of tang, to boot), honey is unmatched. Plus, it's just more sophisticated than adding extra mixers, like syrup or fruit juice, to dilute a cultivated cocktail. (L'Amethyste, by Satoru Tsubamoto and Joji Watanabe)

T. MICHELLE MURPHY

tmichelle.murphy@metro.us

Flavored liquor

If you overlook the seemingly endless cheap vodkas that taste like cake or cereal, there are actually some high-quality finds out there. The best thing is that you don't need a pantry full of fancy ingredients to mimic a complex layering of creative flavors. (The King Bee, adapted by St. John Frizell)

Spice and heat

Think outside of the bitters box. For those with a more savory palate, and those sick of sweet "girly" drinks, options are cropping up with profiles that seem to come straight out of your spice rack. Peppers are especially "hot" right now. Why should bloody marys have all the fun? (Prickly Heat Sour, by Katie Loeb)

Grape & Vine

Tucked into the quaint Greenwich Village Jade Hotel is Grape & Vine, where restaurateur Frederick Lesort opted to add a vegan entree to the dinner menu: a quinoa and rainbow Swiss chard roulade, with citrus, beets and saffron oil ($26). Says Lesort, "Being French, I have been used to good food and never worried about butter, meat, fish and cream-heavy sauces. Only in the last few years have I started to consider alternatives and seen the growing interest of our clients toward vegetarian and vegan fare. I have finally decided to venture to vegetarian and vegan restaurants and loved it."

Surprising places to find vegan dishes

Spots where vegans, carnivores, herbivores, omnivores and blessed flexitarians can dine in peace. CINDY AUGUSTINE

Thistle Hill Tavern

The former "Top Chef" contestant at the helm of this Park Slope eatery loves his meat, and it shows in his menu. But Dale Talde also offers a surprise addition to his dinner and brunch menu: a vegan burger made with white bean, cracked wheat and mushroom, served on a potato roll with salt-and-pepper french fries

($13) that is sure to keep non-meat eaters feeling included and happy. "I created the vegan burger because I didn't want anyone to feel out of place here," Talde says. "We spent time developing the recipe, because we don't want to have anything on the menu by default. We air-dry the patties before we sear them to create a great crisp sear." 441 Seventh Ave., Brooklyn, 347-599-1262

Sen

At this spacious modern Japanese Flatiron spot, Sen offers a vegan roll: the Pink Monk ($12). Made with soy paper, seasoned hijiki (a sea vegetable), kam-pyo (a type of gourd), daikon, avocado, asparagus, shitake and micro greens, this pretty pink roll is a welcome change from the typical cucumber and veggie rolls typically offered. Out of the city, the same roll is offered at its Sag Harbor location. 12 W. 21st St., 212-388-5736

North End Grill

At this Battery Park City newcomer, Chef Floyd Cardoz makes the most of the wood-burning grills for his meat dishes, but his plancha entree — a fricassee of wild mushrooms with "upma polenta" ($26) — is strictly vegan. "I believe that you can get a lot more flavor and texture out of vegetables," he says. "It doesn't have to be animal product to taste delicious. We have a farm on our rooftop where we're sourcing vegetables, fruits and herbs, which are very fresh and highlight the sweetness and acidity and nutritive value of fresh produce. When I am cooking something, I don't even consider the limitations of veganism; I take it more as making something delicious, and it always works out." 104 North End Ave., 646-747-1600

More vegan dishes

Brooklyn Central Pizza

The "Red Hook" pie is made with tomato sauce, artichokes, peppers, mushrooms and scallions ($15). 289 Fifth Ave., Brooklyn, 347-725-4891

Colicchio & Sons

Among duck, pork and sirloin offerings, vegans will be pleased to find the crispy pea cake, served with citrus-braised endive, broccoli, avocado and seaweed ($28). 85 10th Ave., 212-400-6699

Hill Cafe

The veggie taco is brimming with marinated crispy seitan, bean sprout salad, guacamole, tofu pico de gallo and soy cheese ($15). 17 Putnam Ave., Brooklyn, 718-230-3471

Tapas talk with Marc Vidal of Boqueria

Hot chef. The sexy Spaniard got his start in his grandma's restaurant (aww).

Marc Vidal fits every definition of a "hot chef." The man behind both locations of Boqueria came to New York from his hometown of Barcelona to seduce the city with Spanish tapas.

What sparked your interest in cooking?

Growing up, my family owned a small restaurant outside of Barcelona. My grandmother was the chef, and we only offered breakfast and dinner. Everyone had a part in the restaurant — I did every job, from washing dishes to helping her prep. To be honest, I wasn't the best student in school, and wasn't sure what I wanted to do with my future. I decided to go to culinary school, and once I did, I fell in love with cooking.

Why is cooking tapas special to you?

Personally, it's more fun to work in a tapas restaurant. It's a more relaxed environment, more casual food, and I get the chance to cook a wider range of dishes since we create menus of various small plates.

What are some of your favorite things to cook off the Boqueria menu and why?

At Boqueria, we offer a traditional menu, which has all of the classic tapas dishes that you would find at any tapas bar in Spain. We also offer the "Carta de Dia," or Market Menu, which has my favorite dishes. Since the Market Menu rotates weekly or bi-weekly based on whatever local and seasonal ingredients we find at the farmers market, I get to create my own dishes and come up with things that rotate every week.

Do you cook for yourself at home when you're not working?

I usually only cook at home when I invite friends over. I recently purchased a barbecue to grill on my roof, and am looking forward to grilling up different types of meats and seasonal vegetables this summer.

What do you love most about cooking in New York City?

New York City is different than any other city in the world that I've been to. There are so many great restaurants and varying cultures and cuisines to experience and become inspired by. It's hard to find that in other cities.

Sandy won't stop the Atlantic City Food and Wine Festival

Trips. Rocco DiSpirito, the Neelys and other star chefs return for another season.

For the fifth consecutive summer, Caesar's Entertainment Atlantic City will be hosting the Atlantic City Food and Wine Festival from July 25 through July 28. The four-day festival will include not only an array of diverse meals and wines, but some of the culinary industry's biggest names, including Rocco DiSpirito, Robert Irvine and both Gina and Patrick Neely.

Guests can look forward to many events during the festival. The Grand Market, the festival's largest event, will feature a wide variety of food and drinks, as well as tips from culinary professionals. Blues, Brews & BBQ will include recipes from the best barbecue vendors along with merchandise. Gina and Patrick Neely along with Robert Irvine will be hosting the Beach Soiree, where you can enjoy appetizers and cocktails while dancing to live music. The Gospel Brunch, also hosted by Gina and Patrick Neely, will feature a southern buffet spread

Parties galore

The agenda

The Grand Market: The signature event of the Atlantic City Food and Wine Festival will have you eating and drinking your way through a wide selection of foods, wines, craft brews and liquors.

Blues, Brews & BBQ: Barbecue vendors take over and cook up some of the best ribs, chicken and brisket you've ever tasted. Also: ice-cold beer!

Beach Soiree: When the sun goes down, the festival heats up. Enjoy an evening beachside party while savoring refreshing cocktails and gourmet passed appetizers. After all, live entertainment, dancing and fun are always a great way to end your day. Robert Irvine and The Neelys will host.

Island Luau: The Neelys host this island luau featuring their spin on Hawaiian treats.

and an accompanying gospel show. Guests can also attend Island Luau, a party of hula dancers and Hawaiian cuisine.

Having worked in Atlantic City for a number of years and not being able to do many food festivals, Chef Robert Irvine is excited to be a part of the festivities for the third time. "I want to talk to a lot of people [about] healthy eating, more family time," says Irvine. "Not just this year, but in general."

May 31-June 2, Tompkins Square Park, free, 212-466-6666, www.howlfestival.com
The arts are still alive and well on the Lower East Side, as evidenced by the yearly meeting of poetry, music, paintings, performance art and more at the Allen Ginsberg-inspired Howl! Festival.

SPORTS

New York Liberty home opener

Tomorrow, 7:30 p.m., Prudential Center, 165 Mulberry St., Newark, N.J., $22-$264, 973-757-6200
Tonight, New York's ladies of summer have their home opener against Tulsa (even if they aren't technically in New York, and even though New York's hometown WNBA team is playing in New Jersey this year while Madison Square Garden undergoes repair). They're only a PATH ride away.

ART

PUNK: Chaos to Couture

Through Aug. 11, The Metropolitan Museum of Art, 1000 Fifth Ave., $25, 212-535-7710, www.metmuseum.org
Sid Vicious meets Lady Gaga at one of the grandest museums in the world. This is the one exhibition that everybody is talking about: The show bridges the gap between 1970s punk rebellion and today's high-fashion houses.

Horoscope

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20. If you find yourself in a situation similar to one that you didn't handle well in the past, proceed with caution so that you don't repeat the same mistakes.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22. It's never a good thing to poke your nose into someone else's business. If you needed to know, you'd have been briefed.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22. A close friend is beginning to lose patience with you, because she has started to feel taken for granted.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Although you might lack the ability to see the error of your ways, you could easily find fault with others.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22. When delegating important personal responsibilities, be careful of whom you choose. Someone could do on your behalf that you won't like.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21. You and some family members might be on the edgy side. Be careful not to do anything that could cause tempers to boil over.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21. Try to temporarily shelve distasteful tasks. If you're doing work you dislike, performance will suffer.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20. Business and pleasure may not mix well, so think twice before pitching a deal at a social gathering. Your chances for making a sale won't be good.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18. In a last-minute effort to catch up on things left undone, you might start cracking the whip on others.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20. Don't misread feelings of apprehension. These particular worries come from negative thinking.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20. Be as prudent as possible when enjoying leisure activities with friends. You'll have more fun if you don't have to open your wallet.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21. If you allow yourself to get involved with people whose objectives are not in harmony with yours, it's only apt to impede your progress. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Question the pill's appeal

Re: 'On the pill? Take this, too' (Metro, May 29) I was wondering what was wrong with me. In today's paper, I found out! Your excellent article about birth control pills and what they are messing around with — natural balance and well-being — within a woman's body was a true eye-opener! Last month, I discovered that my current birth control pill was causing my severe and chronic migraines — now I see how many other aspects of my health those tiny little pills may be affecting. Ladies, this is a great conversation-starter with your doctor.

What about US workers?

Re: 'Stop blaming America first' (Metro, May 29) The reason former US garment workers have no job is because of corporate greed. Corporate America went overseas so they wouldn't have to pay a living wage — so what makes you think you can shame them into investing in safer factories for their quarter-on-the-dollar labor? They'll just pack up and find another poor country.

No Re-Tort: Rangers fire Tortorella as head coach

NHL. New York's controversial head coach was "a little bit shocked" to be fired, GM says.

On breakup day, John Tortorella termed the 2013 season "a sideways step."

That misstep cost Tortorella his job with the Rangers. The organization announced yesterday afternoon that the controversial head coach had been fired.

"I made the decision," team president and general manager Glen Sather said in a 22-minute conference call with reporters. "This is the decision I made."

Following a 2011-12 season in which the Rangers advanced to the Eastern Conference Final for the first time since the 1996-97 season, the 2013 team finished sixth with a 26-18-4 mark despite the acquisition of sniper Rick Nash to a team that included Henrik Lundqvist, Ryan Callahan and Brad Richards.

The Rangers qualified for the Stanley Cup playoffs in the second-to-last game of the regular season. It took the Rangers seven games to beat the Capitals in the Eastern Conference quarterfinals, including winning Games 6 and 7. The Rangers were eliminated by Boston in five games of the conference semifinals.

"John was a little bit shocked," Sather said. "I can't tell you how shocked he was, but I don't think he was prepared for it."

Candidates

Sather refused to name any candidates, but said he'd like to have someone in place by the June 30 draft. Metro looks at a few options:

- Lindy Ruff — former

Rangers player (1988-91) and Sabres coach

- Alain Vigneault — fired by Canucks May 22
- John Stevens — former Flyers head coach

MLB. Jeter takes next step in his comeback from ankle fracture

The timeline for Derek Jeter's return remains unknown, but playing catch for the first time since suffering a second fracture in his left ankle on April 18 seems to indicate some kind of progress.

Jeter was at Yankee Stadium yesterday for a brief workout. The next step is to begin fielding grounders and hitting if a CT scan shows progress in the ankle that was initially fractured in the 2012 ALCS.

"I just started throwing today," Jeter said. "I've got another test in the next week and a half, and after that, I'll know [more]. I can't run. I can't do anything like that until the next test. We'll wait to see what happens." LARRY FLEISHER

Battered bats

Teixeira, Youkilis play in Trenton

Injured Yankees Mark Teixeira and Kevin Youkilis got in their first real game action since hitting the disabled list with a game at Double-A Trenton yesterday.

Both players went 0-of-2 with a walk in three plate appearances. Youkilis scored a run, though it was on a home run, so he didn't get much of a chance to test his injured back. Both players will play in a second rehab game today. METRO

Yanks' Overbay relates to Davis' slumping bat

Davis is batting .152 with four home runs on the season, and had more than one hit in a game just four times this season. / GETTY IMAGES

MLB. The Mets' first baseman continues to look lost at the plate this season.

When Ike Davis was struggling in the first half of last season, a three-homer night in Arizona broke him out of the slump.

Yankees first baseman Lyle Overbay was on the opposing bench. When the two spoke during the opening Subway Series games in Queens, Overbay shared the memory of that game.

"I've talked to him," he said. "He can hit. I even reminded him, and even told him that when he hit those three home runs at Arizona against [Ian] Kennedy, he never looked back. That was it. He couldn't get out of here fast enough. I don't know personally, but it seemed like when he hit that, the next day, you could tell he was a totally different hitter."

Even with Overbay's positive reinforcement, Davis is struggling. He is 4-for-53 over his last 16 games and took a .152 average into last night's game. The possibility he could be demoted, along with shortstop Ruben Tejada, still exists. But manager Terry Collins wasn't prepared to talk about a meeting he had with each.

"I understand that was going to be asked today," Collins said. "I'll also tell you that when I have a meeting in my office, it stays in my office. If I wanted to broadcast what was being said to players on a daily basis, I'd invite everybody in. So I'll leave it at that."
